

5 Things the Best IT Solution Providers & MSPs Do Differently

How top-performing channel partners pull ahead on net revenue retention.

THE DIFFERENCE IS INTELLIGENCE

The channel is not short on capable, hard-working providers. What separates the top performers, the ones growing net revenue retention and approaching renewals with confidence, is better intelligence. Here are the five practices that make it possible.

01 Replace gut feel with structured measurement

Top performers know the health of every account at every stage, from a system that continuously surfaces signal, not from sales-rep check-ins and quarterly reviews.

of providers still drive account-health decisions on sales-team feel, not data.

With VistaXM: a continuous program we run for you, feeding verified account health into your renewal and expansion decisions.

02 Measure the full journey, not just the renewal

By the time renewal starts, the opinion is already formed. They measure procurement, delivery, onboarding, support, and operations, and act on friction before it compounds.

58%

who churn at first renewal blame a bad procurement, onboarding, or early experience.

TSIA

With VistaXM: measurement mapped to every phase, surfacing signals early enough to act on, not just document after the fact.

03 See the full buying committee

Renewals are not decided by one person. They track technical, operations, procurement, and executive stakeholders, and repair the fragile relationships first.

6-10

stakeholders shape a typical enterprise purchase and renewal decision.

Gartner

With VistaXM: programs that reach every stakeholder and surface the Decision-Maker to Influencer gap, the most reliable early warning of churn.

04 Make continuous engagement the advantage

The best providers do not have renewal conversations. They have confirmation conversations, because drift is caught and fixed months before contract end.

2.4x

more likely to expand at renewal with quarterly structured account reviews.

TSIA

With VistaXM: the touchpoints, analysis, and account alerts that make proactive relationship management possible at scale.

05 Turn customer signals into revenue actions

A negative signal becomes a CRM flag; a disengaged stakeholder triggers outreach; an expansion signal hits the pipeline review. The insight drives a decision, not a report.

78%

act on fewer than half the customer insights they already collect.

With VistaXM: the survey design, analysis, and workflow integration that turn feedback into decisions, with no data scientists to hire.

THE INTELLIGENCE GAP COMPOUNDS

Each contract cycle, the top-quartile providers build on cleaner data, stronger relationships, and more confident renewals. The gap is not service quality.

It is intelligence, and it widens every quarter you wait.
